

There is a certain . . .
ROUTINE to our everyday lives here. Some find this routine boring, but others find it makes our school familiar and more a part of us. Before school one can hear a constant buzz from students while lockers are slammed shut, opened, and slammed again. Meanwhile, a constant wave of students move down the halls coming from cars and buses. Last minute conversations are held as students run to first hour classes hoping to make it before their tardy.
