

Pulling Together . . . Holding Strong

This year was a special year for the Varsity girls' basketball team. For the first time in a long time they achieved a special relationship with each other . . . that of a family.

Before each game the girls took turns eating at each others' houses. Even though this helped to psych them up for the game, the team did have a few slumps, which accounts for their 15-5 record. To try to get out of these slumps the coach and team had two team talks, and they must have done the trick. Who will ever forget the second Fowler vs. Ashley game when the Ashley Bears met, fought, and conquered Fowler, leaving them in the dust of 15 points when the final buzzer sounded?

The Sports Boosters got into the act and provided orange juice, oranges, or apples to both teams during half-time at all the home games. This helped to get the girls ready for the second half.

The team was not together just in practice or at games. A few times the team got together at Kirsten Gavenda's house for pizza parties and movies. This shows that these girls have gotten out of sports what they should have. They know how to work together and to get along with other people.
