

After anticipating the coming of spring throughout the cold winter, we sing a song of excitement and joy when it finally does arrive.

We sing a joyous song when it comes time for the seniors to leave on their senior trip to sunny Florida. A song of excitement when 20/20 arrives at school to beam Ashley High School across the country on nationwide T.V.

We sing of excitement when prom time comes rolling around. We are excited, wondering if that special guy will ask us to go with him to the prom or if that special girl will say, "yes." When he does ask or she does say "Yes," the song of excitement crescendos.

We are excited about graduation and open houses. The seniors because they will be starting a whole new life, the underclassmen because it is one less year until it will be them graduating and getting out of school and into the real world.

In excitement of the fresh spring air, budding trees, and blooming flowers, we start to count down the weeks and then the days until finally summer arrives and we are out of school, some for good and some only until next fall, when the song will again start anew.

1. A few last minute pointers.
2. Another run for the Bears.
3. Caught in the act.
4. "Watch out, here it comes!"
