

Journalism

Yearbook And Newspaper

The journalism class had a very interesting year. Mrs. Suzanne Luneack was the rookie advisor, and even though this was her first year, things ran fairly smoothly.

The journalism staff set a goal of $1500 to raise in yearbook ads. After going out twice to solicit ads, the journalism staff raised just over $2000.

On top of working to put out a yearbook for the 85-86 year, the staff also produced nine issues of the school paper, The Spotlight. This year the paper featured a funny advice column with the mysterious Bertha answering the letters. In the last issue Bertha was revealed as Sandy Jelinek. Also included in the paper were five regular columns. They were a sports column, a current events column, a music critique column, a light humor column, and one made of just casual comments.

Kneeling: Rob Kral, Wanda Collins, Julie Faber, Sandy Jelinek, Teresa Rousseau. Standing: Al Stehlik, Rick Steffen, Jeff Andersen, Julie Mills, Mrs. Suzanne Luneack, advisor. Top Row: Karen Stoneman, Barb Schmidt, Tammy Conklin, Lori Saxton, Kristen Gavenda.