

Drama Club On A "Role"

This year's drama club consisted of 19 actors and actresses, a stage crew, student director, and director. Performing drama is not an easy task. First, time to practice has to be found softball, baseball, catechism, and jazz band. When that time is found, then a cast must be chosen that will suit the roles in the production the best. That may mean turning some students down and this is not a favorite job, but it must be done. After parts are given, the club can then get down to business. The practices are conducted in a relaxed but serious manner, to bring out the acting potential in each individual, although it sometimes brings out the humor, instead. These productions brought an ending to this year's drama club's activities. A cast party was held at Sherry Cook's house to celebrate the ending of the drama club's season. Again this year, drama club presented three one-act plays, instead of the traditional three-act drama. The plays were "The Gossip Shop," "High Window," and "Almost The Bride Of Dracula."

Count Dracula (Wes Burk) shares a moment of tenderness with Lisa (Jodi Felton) in the presentation, "Almost The Bride Of Dracula."

Val Strouse adds the finishing touch to Rane Kirkpatrick as she appears in the play, "The Gossip Shop."
