

At least once, we all should say we had the chance to Spend A Night "In My Dreams"

For most couples the big night started off at the Brass Bell or The Heritage House in Chesaning, Mountain Jack's in Lansing, The Harvester House in Alma, or even in a family dining room, with grandparents as maitre d' and server.

The juniors had worked decorating for the 1988 prom for hours and it turned out even better than they had anticipated. Prom guests strolled up sidewalks decorated by candlelight. Pretty special, right? Well, this was a special night. Walking through the gossamer curtains hanging in the doorway was an entry into a magical ballroom. Silver paper reflected the lights showcasing the deejay, "Piccadilly." Large arches were filled with buoyant pink, silver, and clear balloons. Sparkling ponds added a fresh scent.

Dancing was the main activity of the evening for most couples. Eyes were drawn to our exchange students, Christoff Ulleweit from Germany, and Ulrika Pehrson from Sweden. Their spectacular dancing style reminded everyone of the year's hit movie, "Dirty Dancing."

Although dancing was a main activity, other guests lounged at the side tables enjoying cake and punch.

"BEING BEST FRIENDS, relieved us of the stress of a romantic interlude, so we could just relax and have a hilarious time," states Wes Burk as he poses with his date, Treena Palmer.

A NICE TWIST on Prom night dinner came when Pat Cordray, Angela Felton, Chaunda Shaw, and Brian Gavenda headed to Angela's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barden's, who catered a three-course meal for the two couples.

SHARING A DANCE with the fuzzy rabbit Warren won from the deejay's drawing, Tina Leavitt and Warren Faber get into a party mood.
