

JENNY MURPHY, CADET teacher for the elementary's special education, says that the teacher (Miss Gayari) is easy to talk to. "You can talk to her about anything, from boyfriends to college."

Cadet teachers, First row: Sherry Felton, Amy Burk, Ann Fabus, Tammy Sopocy, Bob Oswald, Pat Cordray, Chris Shaw, Lisa Lacker, Cathy Strand Second row: Matt Chvojka, Cyndi Surdock, Stephanie Melvin, Brian Gavenda, Jim Stehlik, Amy Lytle, Russell Klatt, Erin Malek, Val Strouse, Julie Kremer Third row: Lynna Tupica, Cheryl Howe, Amy Anderson, Jamie Plesko, Tom Lamey, John Jelinek, Aaron Burk, Eric Cook, Wade Kremer, Kim Morris Last row: Ron Boullis, Dana Payne, Wes Burk, Matt Paksi, Otis Viles

Jenny Murphy finds a place in her heart for a group of students

Special Cadet

She's no ordinary cadet teacher. She has an easy going style and a natural flair with children. Jenny Murphy has been cadet teaching for the elementary's special education for the past year and a half and she loves it, despite all of the papers she usually corrects and bulletin boards she puts up.

Jenny chose to cadet for this class because: "There aren't so many kids in it at one time, and they get more individual help."

"I knew the kids before I started cadeting, and they're all nice," Jenny commented. "I like them, and I know them — not only inside of the class, but out. I enjoy talking to them."

Jenny's career plans include becoming an accountant, but she adds, "If I don't make it in accounting, then I'll probably go into teaching for special education, so they can get more help."