

"I won again!" yelled Otis Viles each time the crowd asked him to give a speech after receiving one of his many awards at the Awards Assembly in May. Otis was recognized as a finalist in the National Merit contest and also received the Physics Award, the Current Events Award, the College Algebra/Trigonometry Award and was tapped into the National Honor Society.

Cathy Strnad was another big-time winner, walking away with the Journalism Award, the Cadet Teaching Award, and the Pepsi Cola Senior of the Year Award.

Many other students were honored at the assembly. Whether it was because they excelled in all classes, rated high on a test, served as a club or class officer or just because they came to school every day during the school year, these students were recognized for their achievements. The Assembly concluded with the tapping of NHS members.

SCHOLARSHIP AND ATHLETIC ability are two requirements for consideration for the Maurice Buckingham Award. Mrs. B presents this year's award to Amy Lytle.

TWO SEVENTH GRADERS, Ronda Cook and Michelle Andersen, are presented with Presidential Physical Fitness Awards by Mr. Walden. These two were the only seventh grade girls receiving this award.

AMERICA AND ME is the topic of the traditional Farm Bureau eighth grade essay contest. This year's winners were Michelle Wolfe, first place; Jennifer Keck, second place; Shawn Sopocy, third place.
