

Teams Give Their Best

Few fans, one coach?
So what!

Teams' hard work
bring winning records

If this year's team had to pin down any problems, they would come up with two: First, one coach had to do the work of two coaches, and second, not enough fan support. With JV and varsity volleyball teams both sharing the same coach, it was a little difficult, sometimes, to get the help they needed. It was also hard to play well with no fans coming to the games, said Melanie Zimmerman, JV player.

Both teams had trouble getting the basic bump, set, spike down, but after practicing a while, it became a normal action, with JV helping varsity and varsity helping JV.

The advice one volleyball player would give any one interested in playing is to expect personal sacrifices and to realize you won't be great in the beginning; it takes time, effort and a lot of practice.
