

Hard Work Keeps Groups Busy

It's a tough job but these organizations just do it

The 1990-91 school year was a very busy one. The student council started the year off with a "Foreign Country" homecoming, parade, and ceremonies. After the hustle and bustle of homecoming, things seemed to slow down but not the student council. The student council is always addressing concerns, and the students and administration have to figure out the proper course of action to take on the matter. Aside from these activities and responsibilities, the student council also promotes Twirp Week, and Puttin' on the Hits.

The National Honor Society, even though there were only three members, also had a busy year. The NHS sponsored the Scholastic Breakfast, which is held to honor the seventh and eighth grade students who maintain at least a 'B' average. They also sponsor the Scholastic Banquet, honoring ninth through twelfth graders who have a 3.00 grade point average, have been on the honor roll five marking periods, or have achieved a 3.5 grade point average.

Finally, office practice is an hour that is generally thought of as a blow-off class. It's true there is no homework, but the work you do can be challenging. "Trying to get along with the people I work with was very challenging," commented Heidi Harlow. Aside from office skills, this organization also gives you a chance to work with many different people.

Student Council: Front row: Jeremy Cartwright, Kelli Felton, Jim Drummond Second row: Scott Brzak, Cory Gavenda, Dawn Strouse, Brenda Saylor, Regina Kirkpatrick, Sara Brzak, Lynette Saylor, Ann Miller, Back row: Joe Fabus, Melanie Zimmerman, Marty Cartwright, Ellery Sosebee, Dominic Lowe, Gary Shestag, advisor.

National Honor Society: Cory Gavenda, Jennifer Keck, Kurt Densmore.