

Some Things Never Change, But Now ... Spirit's Gonna Getcha!

The Traditions Of Homecoming Week Generate Anticipation And Excitement

We all can remember feeling the excitement and anticipation in the air during Homecoming week. For years now Homecoming week has been the same. We have our dress-up days and the slave auction; the cheerleaders put on pep assemblies and the all-favorite snake dance. These things have become tradition for us at AHS. It's good to have a few things we know will never change.

I will always remember Matt Chovjka ripping off his shirt and letting those muscles ripple during the slave auction, and all the football players walking in tied together, with Mr. Andersen following close behind cracking his whip.

Remember when the Snake Dance was taken through town and we got to have scavenger hunts that took us throughout Ashley? And this year Mr. Hendricks was Grand Marshal and led the parade. Homecoming may be the same activities year after year, but each year is different in its own way. It may be Hippie Day instead of Nerd day or U of M Day instead of MSU Day, but AHSers keep on showing their spirit.
