

Students Get Scared

On A Spirit-Filled Halloween Day

BEEN WALKED ACROSS THE HALL LATELY? Heidi VanZee put on a great show as Grandma VanZee, causing quite a ruckus in some classes because everyone was laughing at her performance.

M. Wolfe

M. Wolfe

It's always been assumed that Halloween is just for children. Well, that has been proven wrong by the ladies and gentlemen at Ashley High School.

This year, almost half of the students dressed up and celebrated with the ghosts and goblins of Halloween. Mrs. Connie Bongard's child development class even threw a party in which they played Pin the Nose on the Pumpkin (senior Michelle Wolfe won a small plastic pumpkin filled with candy), and listened to ghost stories. Then the lights were turned off and the class each put their hands in containers and tried to guess what disgusting substances were in them. One container was filled with smashed bananas, caramel, and chocolate chips. Another had asparagus greens in it.

M. Wolfe

"There was a lot more interest this year and I enjoyed seeing everyone dressed up. You can tell from all of the pictures I took!", stated Mrs. Ruth Seals. At that, she's right . . . everyone did get into the spirit of Halloween, not only the students who handed out Eyeball Gumballs and Gummy Aliens, but also the teachers, and even the band.

Three teachers who really got into the fun were Mr. Shawn Feeley, Mrs. Marilyn Gearhart, and Mrs. Connie Bongard. They arrived at school as the Marx Brothers and spent the day honking their horns and smoking their plastic cigars.

For the first time, the Ashley Senior High Marching Band performed a Halloween halftime show in disguise. Costumes ran BOZO?!? It may not be Bozo the Clown, but Jeremy Saylor makes a great clown of his own. Jeremy's mom, Denise, helped him with his costume and make-up for that day.

"The Halloween party brought my students' true colors to life!"

Mrs. Connie Bongard

from Drum Major Danielle Burk's Phantom of the Opera to percussionist Jason Sutton's Energizer Bunny. Jason's costume went well with Ashley . . . the spirit just keeps going, and going, and going . . .