Drama Club Makes Us Feel Like Kids Again!

Ghosts, dragons, kings and queens, haunted houses, and happy endings. This year's drama club did something out of the ordinary . . . they brought out the childhood imagination in us.

The first play of the year was, "The Liberated Dragon," a story of a princess who's desperate to marry Prince Richard, played by C.J. Lowe.

The spring play, "Ghost

Wanted," was a chilling comedy about two sisters who hire two "ghosts" to cure their grandma's interest in voodoo. Little do they know there is a real ghost, who is also a murderer. At the end the murderer, Adam "Hatcher" Palmatier, is captured and Ginger, played by Robin Woody and Hugo, played by C.J. Lowe, finally admit their attraction to each other.

◆ ORANGE HAIR AND IN A DAZE is Kelly Lytle as "Madam Zolga" in the drama production "Ghost Wanted." "The final results are the best" is how Kelly summed it up.

Mrs. Marilyn Gearhart, director, reflected on the year by saying, "Working with the cast this year was as lively and crazy as the plays we put on!"

◆ JOE, LOOKING HIS BEST! Dawn Strouse applies Joe Merignac's makeup before the play "Ghost Wanted." Joe was a stand-in for Jason Pendleton, who was unable to make it.
