

TIME TO RISE

WAKIN' UP IS HARD TO DO

K. Lytle

"GET YOUR BUTT OUTTA BED!" Dominic Lowe tries his hardest to wake his brother, C.J., from his deep sleep. C.J. found that an alarm clock couldn't do the job, so he recruited Dominic.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR. Chad Huntoon, Ben Follett, and Ronda Merignac check out a love letter that they found in the hall. Students usually post or pass around all letters found at Ashley.

"BEEP, BEEP, BEEP . . ." Ugh! The agony and torment of that annoying alarm clock dragging you back into reality from deep sleepful dreams, and although many of us would just rather hit the snooze, there are some people who enjoy getting up and starting the day . . .

James Owen Drummond, the perfect example. Jim wakes at sunrise to trudge out into the barn and milk cows. And what pushes Jim to slither out of bed each morning? Is it sense of duty? Knowledge and Strength? American Pride?! "Nah, it's the money," remarks Jim.

C.J. Lowe shared the secret that his younger brother Dominic has to practically pull him out of bed in the morning (Does this sound like you?)

Mornings at Ashley High School are always busy. Cooks preparing lunch meals, bus drivers picking up school children, teachers preparing lesson plans and checking papers, and students doing just about anything to stay awake. Many students clean their lockers, visit with friends or finish schoolwork due in hours.

Whatever these people are doing to rise and shine, they're doing it well. The annual attendance awards were at an all-time high this year. A big plus, because as we all know: Waking up is hard to do!
