Bears Just Get Better

Team Picks Up Pace After Slow Start

The boys' varsity basketball team didn't start out the greatest, but they did improve. Who noticed? Everybody! Michelle Wolfe and Kelly Lytle — two loyal fans — stated, "They didn't play for themselves this year; they passed the ball more and got better shots." Some of the players also feel they improved from last year. Cory Gavenda said, "I think our defense improved a whole lot. We had a lot of good shooters and had great size with Marty and Matt."

"We came together as a team; we all worked together," stated Chris Sosebee.

As team members reflect on the season, Marty and Matt seem to be strong points for the team and their stats prove that fact true. They were just two of the many reasons that the Bears felt their team was a strong one this year.
