

STARTING OUT AT THE BEGINNING

Seventh Graders Suffer The Lineup

When you're the youngest, you learn how to pass the time in the longest line.

The seventh graders waited in line for their lunch, for the vending machines, a chat with Mr. Walden, a problem in the office and even for a seat at a pep assembly.

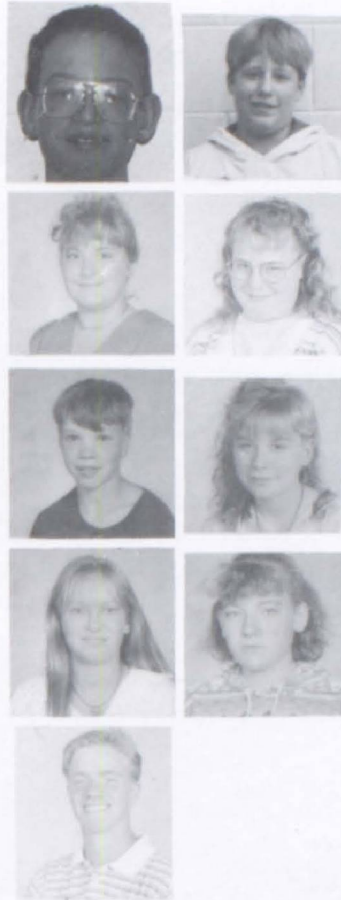

Sue Ann Harrell said, "Getting school pictures taken was the longest line I waited in."

Students also found the lunch line to be a long wait, as in Terri Kral's case: "My worst experience was standing in the lunch line behind a person that had bad body odor." These kinds of experiences seem to make line waits even longer.

Perhaps a little advice for future seventh graders would help. "You'll be at the end of the line, so get used to it!" Angie Peters recommended.

Jo Anna Thompson

Matt Schueller
Darren Stambaugh

Lisa Strnad
Dianne Surdock

Nick VanZee
Melisa Wagner

Mindy Wallen
Melissa Wicke

Jessy Wolfe

J. Thompson

J. Thompson

"NO! I SAID ALPHABETICALLY!" Lining up for gym is just one of the lines seventh graders find themselves in each day. Lined up are Tom Jungnitsch, Seth Copsey, Jody Leiner, Lisa Strnad, Carry Felton, Eric Fabus, Heather Polash, Terri Kral, Matt Crumbaugh, Dianne Surdock, Mindy Wallen, Shawn Shreiner, Kristen Mephram, Darren Stambaugh, and Nick VanZee.

KEEPING THE BEAT. Heather Polash and Mindy Wallen practice their music for solo ensemble. Heather and Mindy both received II from the judges on their performances.