

S. Luneack

PUCKER UP, BABY! Freshman Daniel Grollinund complies with his master's wish during slave day. Daniel commented, "I didn't think I'd have to dress like a woman, but once it was over it wasn't so bad."

MOM, I CAN'T BELIEVE YOU DID THAT! Cheerleaders Missie Dennis, Donna Waldron, Regina Kirkpatrick, and Ronda Merignac look on as mothers Marlene Jungnitsch, Lorraine Viles, and Julia Worden kiss their sons Joe Beracy, Joe Jungnitsch, Kevin McElhaney, Brandon Viles, and Mike Worden. The kissing caper was a homecoming spirit prank.

J. Ortman

Traditions. . .

Blue And Gold

School
Spirit
Soars
During Homecoming

The parade, face painting, float competition, slave auction, and a bonfire are all traditions of homecoming week at Ashley. Half the fun is all the anticipation.

Classes look forward to competing in the float competition. Seventh grader Geno Burgett remarked, "Building a float was a lot of fun, but taking second place was even better, knowing we beat the older classes."

Wednesday of homecoming week gets students