

S. Luneack

small, but nice. People were closer together instead of all spread out," Kristen Fabus commented.

Dancing is a big thing at prom. But, aside from the traditional fast and slow dances, people enjoyed such dances as the chicken dance, hokey pokey, the locomotion, and YMCA.

Students had the option of having their picture taken professionally by the prom photographer, Jim Ortman.

And, of course, what prom would be complete without at least a little bit to eat. This year, the junior class had cake, punch, and cookies for the guests to eat. The room was decorated with black and purple balloons and streamers. A fieldstone water fountain adorned the room, as well. There were also candles on the tables, which added a romantic air to the prom.

After the prom, the party still goes on. Students go see the latest flick at the theatre, test their bowling abilities, or head for a friend's house. A group of people headed to the Alma Cinemas for a viewing of While You Were Sleeping. Always and Forever was the theme for the 1995 prom, and the memories will always and forever stay with all who attended.

Kimberly Contreras

"THEY WON'T MISS ONE BALLOON." Matt Whitford and Shayne Patterson watch as Ron Dycus (second from right) inhales the helium from a prom decoration. "I did it so I could talk really, really funny," Ron commented.