

J. Denniston

the big pile up.

To hear the last slam of that locker, the closing of books and the last good-bye hug brings mixed emotions not only to seniors, but underclassmen, too. "I start looking forward to the upcoming year so I can be with my friends again," remarked Cody Osborn. Friends are a big part of Ashley. "I enjoy just talking my problems out," remarked Jenny Porter.

"Friends that you can trust is an important factor in a relationship."

Sometimes students have to touch up the last minute projects late at night or study for seven exams in two days, but whether or not they set their mind to it makes a difference on how well they do. "My parents expect me to try my best on the end of the year exams," said Randy Harris.

Heidi VanZee

AM I DOING THIS RIGHT? Anxious seniors look around to see if their tassels are flipped the correct way. Everyone caught on pretty well.

PUTTING ON THE FINISHING TOUCH. Mandi Bearden works diligently to complete her Algebra. "The teachers gave me more time to finish my work, due to an injury."

