

A CRAZY BUT PROMISING PLAY

NON-STOP ACTION ENJOYED BY ALL

Aliens...Cora says they are back

CORA...WHAT A CHARACTER

In drama, different types of characters are pushed into one play. In "My Son Is Crazy-But Promising", one of the most prominent characters is Cora Ames. Cora is an eccentric old lady from Pasadena who believes that space people are about to land in her back yard.

Brandie Burgett, sophomore, was chosen to play the part of Cora. "I was excited when I got the part, and I enjoyed playing Cora," Brandie commented. She also stated that Cora was a fun person.

Many actors have difficulty getting into their characters, but not Brandie. "I didn't do much of anything to get into the part. It just came naturally," Brandie said.

Kimberly Contreras

"I have never enjoyed a play as much as I did this one." These were comments Superintendent Larry Ostrander expressed in a letter to the drama club. This year the drama club produced "My Son Is Crazy-But Promising".

The play is about a low budget film writer, Bud Granger, who has escaped the pressures of Hollywood. Bud purchases the Ritz Apache Lodge in Tumbleweed, Arizona.

"I chose this play because of its visual comedy. This play had excellent characters, and I loved the slapstick humor," Mrs. Marilyn Gearhart, drama director, commented.

The action in this comedy was non-stop. "I really enjoyed the scene where Oysters (Tony Bush) was thought to be dead," Leandra Saylor, senior, stated.

Kimberly Contreras

J. Morris

J. Morris