

HOW IS NHS SPELLED? F-U-N!

NHS MAKES WORK LOOK EASY AND FUN

BOWLING FOR MONEY & FUN

The bell has just rung and everybody runs for the bus or the parking lot. Everybody, that is, except for the NHS. The group started a fundraiser two weeks ago to give Christmas presents and dinner to a family. Today they'll buy the presents with the $600 they've raised. They have had fun raising the money with a bowl-a-thon.

Once that the NHS students have all the money and buy the presents, they'll wrap them themselves, too. Playing Santa and Mrs. Claus, Jason Pendleton and Jaime Morris deliver the presents, along with the rest of the group. "It made me feel jolly," Jason states. There was a lot of hard work involved, but Jamie Contreras says, "It was worth it."

Robert Czeiszperger

Imagine this: thick glasses, all A's, pocket protectors, highwater pants, and a briefcase. Is this the typical NHS student? No, sir. The NHS isn't just a group of kids that study tests together. Bowling, going out to eat, and Christmas shopping are just three of the things they enjoy doing for fun. "We're not geeks," said senior Jason Pendleton. Advisor Mrs. Suzanne Luneack remarked, "I really enjoy the kids because they're lively and fun. Intelligent people have a good sense of humor."

Besides having fun, though, NHS members donate their time to such projects as a fundraiser for a family at Christmas, the academic banquet with NHS induction ceremony, and a breakfast for the junior high students with good grades.

Robert Czeiszperger

J. Morris

J. Morris

J. Ortman