

BUSY, BUSY, BUSY! You might think that counseling is nothing but talking, but if you ever drop in on Mr. Larry Walden, you'll probably find him buried under a stack of paperwork filling out forms or figuring students GPA's.

Helping Hands

Special services make students feel at home

T. Polash

They're the icing on the cake, the fizz in the soda... that something extra that can make all the difference...they are the people who provide special services.

Sometimes you see Mr. Larry Walden talking to students in the library before school. They may be discussing the basketball game or where that student can get a college grant.

Passing by Mrs. Marie Shelton's room, you may notice her sitting quietly with a student, going over a social studies worksheet or reading a literature story. If you head over by the superintendent's office, you will find Ms. Paula Rudy's room, complete with a sitting area where students can sink into a couch and relieve the day's stresses. "I really enjoy the kids, they have a good heart." Ms. Rudy's remark sums up pretty well the attitude of these teachers who provide their special services.

Bob Franks

J. Morris

MR. LARRY WALDEN COUNSELOR

While team teaching with Mrs. Sherry Reichard, Ms. Paula Rudy shares a laugh with Donna Fender. Ms. Rudy floats around the classroom helping students with their schoolwork.

T. Polash

