

G oing Forward

Head for success

The end of the school year. Many important changes. There are always changes whenever anything ends. Sometimes we are fearful of what is waiting around the corner. Even so, without these changes our lives would have no meaning.

The seniors are experiencing many important changes. Working or going to college brings a change in everyday routines.

The day after seniors are gone, the juniors are now seniors, the first step up a long ladder to graduation. They are seniors and must accept that this is it, high school is ending.

Sophomores are starting to turn towards worrying about academics, and whether they will have all the classes needed to graduate.

Freshmen are big high schoolers now. They are at the bottom again, on their way towards the top, a long way off.

Seventh and eighth graders are working at getting used to changing classes every hour and remembering locker combinations.

Summer vacation will come to an end all too soon for everyone and the cycle will start over again.

Sara Jean McGillis

S. Bornemann

STAND UP STRAIGHT! Mike Ball measures Kevin McElhaney for his cap and gown. Mike is the Josten's representative for Ashley; the company also provides the seniors with graduation memorabilia.

T. Polash