

FROM ME TO YOU! Senior Jason Saylor presents Matt Whiford with his gift as Shawna Bormemann reads the poem written for each student. "Writing the giftatories was hard, but they turned out well," bragged Jason.

A. Strouse

t h e

class with class

Seniors graduate, taking their "class" with them and leaving behind a good impression

The senior class of 1996 isn't the smartest, or the largest, but they do have a lot of class. High school principal Larry Walden commented, "On the seniors' last day it was very calm, and after school there weren't any smoke shows. I think that shows how much class they really have. I was impressed." The seniors are very proud of having a lot of class. "I think being known for having "class" is great. We've worked hard all through school and I feel we've gotten more respect from teachers than a lot of other classes," stated Robert Czeiszperger.

"Without the class of 1996 around it has become too quiet and dull. I'm going to miss them," proclaimed sophomore Tony Miller. A lot of the underclassmen feel that there was something special about this year's graduating class. "Most of the seniors don't have the 'I'm too good for everyone' mentality. I thought that was pretty cool," said junior Brandon Krueger. There will be a void left in Ashley after this classy class is gone.

Tony Jay Bush