The Drama Club performed a melodrama entitled The Ballad of Gopher Gap. This was Miss Dawn Landis's first attempt at directing a play, and she feels it was definitely a success.

"I thought a melodrama would be neat to try," stated Miss Landis. "The actors handled it quite well and did a really good job," she added.

Miss Landis was aided in directing the play by Mrs. Marilyn Gearhart, a veteran play director.

Along with the main play there was an assortment of small skits. The entire performance was called an olio, literally "stew", a mixture of assorted meats and vegetables.

The play turned out to be a great success. "The audience really liked it," said Miss Landis.
