

Students have the time of their LIVES in a week

Relay races, dress up days, lip-sync contests, and a snowball dance; what more could you ask for in a week? This is what took place during Twirp Week. "This week was a lot of fun and full of activities," commented Snowball Queen, Terri Kral.

Favorite Animal Day and Surfer Day were only a few of the dress up days students participated in. The juniors came out on top with the most dressed up throughout the week.

The relay races consisted of a dress-and-undress race, bat spin, and bear walk, concluding with a fuzzy bunny marshmallow stuffing competition. The sophomore class won, using Jon Whitford as the class's biggest mouth (it turned out he had the biggest mouth in the school).

The juniors swept the competition in the lip-sync contest, with their role reversal, Grease medley. Lifestyles of the Not So Rich and Famous, performed by the sophomores, Romeo, put on by the teachers, and Hard Working Man put on by the seniors, fell in close behind. "I thought the competition was hilarious; I couldn't have judged between them," commented Stacie Fabus.

Twirp Week, as a whole, turned out wonderful, with a lot of spirit and a lot of fun letting loose for a week.
