

T.Turner

T.Turner

Rekindle the flame

In past years when fans walked into boys' basketball games, there was something missing... the cheerleaders. Due to lack of interest, they were absent. But this year they returned. "It was nice to see cheerleaders at the games. It gave us a lot more spirit," commented Valerie Miller.

To make sure the cheerleaders were in shape they did a lot of working out, including a home work out program and Sweatin' to the Oldies during some practices.

With a lot of hard work and determination, the cheerleaders started their season with high hopes. "I thought it would be fun to be a cheerleader," said Misty Henderson.

This season ended with seven very spirited girls. "I was happy with the number of girls who were cheering for basketball and football," said Coach Dawn Landis. "They worked hard and improved greatly throughout the season."

Whether they were doing, 'Jam the Hoop,' or 'Fire Up,' they got the crowd involved. "It was fun to do cheers with the cheerleaders," commented Lisa Maier.

With the new/old tradition of having cheerleaders, the games were more lively. The only thing left to say is, "Go Blue!"

by Brandie Burgett

