

K.Mephram

Meet Lisa Strnad, Spanish I student and Spanish Club member, as well as a Shakespearean ingenue in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Do you belong to an organization or have you thought about joining one? Well, there are numerous reasons to do so. For some, it provides a different view of school life. "I like to be involved because it gives me a reason to come to school rather than the same old monotonous studying," commented Stacie Fabus.

There are a lot of benefits that organizations bring to the school and the community. For example, National Honor Society adopts a family for Christmas every year. They raise money with a bowl-a-thon and then use that to shop for the family. "I think the best project an organization did this year was the NHS Christmas. It was a combination of work and pleasure. We do what Christmas is really about," stated Mrs. Suzanne Luneack.

S.A.D.D. is also beneficial to the students. It hosted a county wide lock-in to show students that they can have fun without drinking. "I really liked the lock-in because I got to be with friends, stay up all night, and do really fun things," remarked Stacie.

"I recommend joining an organization to anyone who likes to be involved and help to reach people," said Stacie.

Jennifer McGillis

let's get involved

HO, HO, HO! Kevin Gavenda and Cody Osborn play Santa and Mrs. Claus for National Honor Society while delivering presents. This year, NHS was able to sponsor two families.

I DON'T BELIEVE IT! An astonished Tony Miller contemplates a question with teammates Neil Johnston and PJ McGillis, as spectators Mark Miller, Nick Dolloff, and Dan Grollimund look on. "We really anticipated having the meet at home, but we got crushed by Laingsburg. It was still fun to have the support," stated Tony.

B.Schulz