

W inning isn't everything

High ambitions. High hopes. Good times. The JV and varsity quiz teams put this all together in one season. "It was fun and the food was cool," laughed P.J. McGillis. "I must have taken 5 cans of pop when we were at Webberville!"

The competition was tough for both teams. The varsity came away winning only 3 matches out of 14 and the JV won 2 out of 14. "Laingsburg and Pewamo-Westphalia were the two teams we wanted to take down the most," stated P.J., "but when you have a girl who scored a 36 on the A.C.T.'s....it makes it difficult to outmatch them."

Even though they didn't win much, either, the JV stayed positive and lively. "If it weren't for me, the JV wouldn't have a sports major, and we might not have won those we did," said Brian Krueger with a smile. "I'm like the secret weapon; you never know when I'll go off." After P.J. moved up to the varsity, the JV quiz team needed to stay focused and ambitious. "It was even harder to try and answer without P.J., because everybody else on the team went into a buzzing fury," stated Brian. "If we would have played smarter and more like a team, we may have won a few more matches."

TIME TO GET DOWN TO BUSINESS! The time ticks as Neil Johnston and P.J. McGillis work on a math problem during a meet. These two guys were the backbone of the team's math angle. "I happen to be quick with off-the-head figures," said Neil Johnston. "P.J. tackled the harder advanced math stuff."
