The junior class are perfect angels with the utmost concern about the environment and behaving as young adults should... yeah, right! The juniors know no boundaries, no limits. For example, Jon Whitford faked a car accident for SADD, Terri Kral taped herself to the wall for Homecoming Week, and for prom, the class of 1999 were broke. Did they give up and decide what was the use of trying? No! They had fundraiser after fundraiser. They kept their heads up and prom was a success.

They can be described as a team because they work together and they work hard without hesitation, but let's get real. All work and no play is not in their vocabulary. They like to have fun. Who doesn't? For instance, Matt Crumbaugh likes football, "It's fun to take out my anger by tackling and hitting people and not getting in trouble for it."

"I think the whole year has been interesting. I hope next year we have even more fun!" said an excited Heather Polash.
