

Feel It All

Kisses, Waves
+ Will Power

Everyone looked forward to Homecoming Week. The events, the dress-up days, the relays, and most importantly, the way classes showed their spirit by working together, fighting for the first place prize: a trip to the movies.

"The pressure was really on for us this year to win first place," commented senior Tracie Turner. "We had a reputation to keep up from winning the past years. Mostly though, we cared about the lip sync because we felt that was the most important event, the one that brought our class the closest together."

Well, the seniors did a good job keeping their reputation up. They took first place in the lip sync like they wanted to, as well as tying for first place overall with the junior class.

"I feel we put up a good fight," stated junior Dianne Surdock. "It didn't matter that we tied with the seniors because we still ended up going to the movies."

Both classes went to the movies together and everyone managed to get along fine. The things that really made it worth while was a little bit of lovin' and a lot of determination. Every class had the greatest amount of the most important element in competition; teamwork. Even if they didn't win during the week, they were still proud of their performance.

Terri Kral

J. Downs

HI, EVERYONE! Waving to her American family in the Homecoming parade, Nut-sreeya Sangpan, our foreign exchange student from Thailand, was chosen as honorary queen to reside over Homecoming activities.

A. Peters

PUCKER UP Mr. Steve Larsen and Mr. Carl Wayer kiss a pig, while senior Dennis Milledge holds it in front of the entire student body. Students donated money votes during the week to give their favorite teachers the chance to kiss a pig. Cheerleaders used the money toward new uniforms.