

FEVER

HARD WORK

brings big results.

What do you get when you combine hard work, intensity, and a lot of extra hours? Dedication. One word that's used often when describing the students taking such classes as Language Arts and Journalism.

Spanish: a class full of fun and cool ways to learn. This Spanish class proved their level of intensity. They worked on a variety of projects this year including bark paintings, piñatas, candy skulls to celebrate Halloween for El Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead), and god's eyes. "The projects were fun and I learned a lot about the Spanish culture," reflected Jody Leiner.

English 10: a class with adventure. "English 10 was an okay class. We watched two movies on The Lord of the Flies; one was black, white, and boring, the other was in color and pretty cool," remarked Ed Pingel. After the class watched the two movies, they were assigned a project to imagine the whole class was stranded on a deserted island without adult supervision, as the boys in the story were. "We were supposed to keep a record of what happened to us in our journals. Like if someone died or something. It was a pretty cool assignment," stated Aaron Grollimund.

Journalism: a class of hard work that pays off. "It was a really good feeling to put all that work into the yearbook and be able to turn in pages. I can't wait to see how the whole yearbook turns out, I'm sure that it'll be great," commented first year journalism student, Amy Dawson.

"Usually the journalism students and I are trapped in here for ages after the last day of school, putting the finishing touches on pages and getting them in. This year, however, the staff and I stayed late into the afternoon on the last two half days of school and finished everything," said journalism instructor, Mrs. Luneack.

In the end, their hard work did pay off and at the end of that second day, the lights were shut off and the pages were sent off to Jostens Publishing Company by the second week in June, all because of their dedication.

Angela Simone

D. Landis

PICASSO? Senior Jeremy Whitaker works on his bark painting for Spanish class. This year is the first year the class was made up primarily of junior high students.

JOURNALISM Front row: Terri Kral, Misty Henderson, Kristin Mephram Second row: Angela Simone, Pat Yelsik, Mindy Wallen, Mrs. Luneack Back row: Jessica McMann, Amy Dawson, Matt Crumbaugh, Dianne Surdock, Kari Deming.

Geskus Photography