

Drama Club First row: Kari Bearden, Val Miller, Amy Dawson, Angela Simone, Jill Cermak Second row: Katie Beck, Lissa Czeiszperger, Stacy Densmore,

Jason McCrimmon, Miranda Coon, Amy Walter Third row: Director Marilyn Gearhart, Kevin McGillis, Steve Lowell Vicki Gilbert, fourth row: Sarah Johnston,

Rebeca Long, Kevin Fabus, Aaron Grolimund, Roy Burgett Last row: Joe Shaw, Aaron Schultz, Annette Cermak, James Polash, Sara Turner, Brandon Beck.

Geskus Photography

SHOOT ME! Lissa Czeiszperger threatens to shoot the whole cast with her very dangerous squirt gun as the character Miss Gooch.

D. Landis

Talent

D. Landis

TRANSVESTITES? Kevin Fabus shows off his female side with Kristin Bornemann and Aaron Schultz joining him. The two boys played undercover FBI agents in the play.

A new stage, new cast members, and an incredibly exciting play composed the drama club, that for the first time since the new addition was added on to the school, got to perform on the cafetorium stage.

"The best part of drama club this year was being able to be in the cafetorium. It allowed us the opportunity to have a great set and a large cast," remarked director Marilyn Gearhart. Not only did it give the students a better set to act on, it provided a way for younger students who, unable to get a part in previous plays, finally had the opportunity to take the stage for the first time.

Freshman Annette Cermak stated, "I enjoyed getting the experience of being on stage for the first time. It was still a lot of fun."

Not only did the rookies enjoy participating in this year's play but so did the experienced members who were posed with more acting challenges. "Being Kevin's sister was so much fun: Kevin is a great actor and we worked very well together," commented third year member Aaron Schultz.

As the year came to a close, all of the upperclassmen involved welcomed a sad end when that last curtain call was finished, while all of the younger members looked forward to a new year of performing with the club. Both groups, however, loved the friendships brought about by one simple play.

Amy Dawson

DRAMA CLUB