Do you enjoy letting your hair down and acting crazy for the students? Why or why not?

- ◆ Mr. Larsen: "Yes, it shows the students I am 'human'. Humor and a little 'messing around' are good for the soul."
- ◆ Ms. Landis: "I do enjoy letting my hair down and acting crazy for the students, especially during lip syncs. I like surprising the students."
- ◆ Mr. Schestag: "I have never been into or comfortable with doing that sort of thing. I do enjoy things upbeat and humorous (humor is very important) though."
- ◆ Mrs. Luneack: "I never miss the chance to dress up in some sort of ridiculous get-up and act goofy in front of people. I'll probably stop it when I grow up some day."
- ◆ Ms. Brown: "I enjoy letting my hair down in front of the students because basically I'm still just a big goofy kid and it's hard to appear as an adult all the time. So when we get to put on skits and such, it's fun to play around, knowing it won't be frowned upon. Also, I think it helps the kids to see us in a different light - - we are not just ogres handing out 8th hours, that we can enjoy a good time too, as long as it is at the appropriate time and place."
- ◆ Mary Gavenda: "Yes, because I like to be irresponsible sometimes."

NERD!!! ... Mr. Paul Smith goes back to his high school years by participating in the skit that the staff put on for the students. The skit portrayed teachers acting the parts of various student "types".
