

Team-work

If you were unable to make it to any of the volleyball games this year and you wondered how the season went, then stay tuned and prepare to be informed!

It was said by many of the varsity players, "If the season were to be summed up in one word, it would be frustration." So if the volleyball team wanted to make the season amount to anything they knew they had to pull together and work as a team, and that is what they did.

One reason their season was so frustrating was practice. Coach Michelle Moore stated, "Sometimes it was nice having a small team, but practice was tough with only six or seven players." So since they didn't have enough players to practice on their own and neither did the JV, the two quite frequently had to practice together. Coach Moore stated, "It was very frustrating at game time when I didn't have anyone to put in when someone was struggling."

Their record of 7-25-1 may not have been the most impressive, but beating Vestaburg at the end of the season and playing a tournament with only five varsity players proved the season to be a success. This made all their hard work pay off, not in the form of a championship, but in the sense of knowing that they improved and did the best with what they had.

The varsity team this year lacked senior leadership. "Because of the lack of senior leadership, someone else would have to step up," Jill Cermak commented. And this is exactly what happened. Having two sophomores as regular starters, the team relied upon the underclassmen for much needed support.

So, as you can see, the season was loaded with good times and bad, which proved to make things very exciting.
