

Living On The Edge

J. Shaw

IT'S BAMBI! Painting class allows students the chance to create from their own interests. Sarah Shaw expresses her love for wildlife while she draws the head of a fawn.

If you want an easy, laid-back class, just take art. . . or maybe PE . . . right? Wrong! These classes may look pretty harmless, on the surface, but watch out - danger lurks beneath that peaceful exterior.

Take PE, for example. According to seventh hour junior high PE cadet, Aaron Schulz, "These kids have a problem with discipline sometimes." When they get those floor hockey sticks flying, anything is liable to happen, especially when seventh graders are pitted against eighth graders.

But the younger students aren't the only ones with

J. Shaw

FREE-FOR-ALL Fifth hour PE junior highers Kelsi Mizer, Nikki Limbert, Dan Bates, Ryan Stoneman, and Brandon Klich go at it during a game of floor hockey. They played boys against girls.