

S. Larsen

HANG TIME Stuntmen senior Aaron Grollmund and close companion Troy Adams jam to the DJ's music and get some air performing their jump rope performance, as seniors Rachel Billings and Kari Bearden twirl the rope. "It was a lot of fun participating in this year's first talent show. It was a nice change opposed to the boring lip syncs in which no one liked participating," comments toe-touching, hand-standing multi-talented superstar, Aaron Grollmund.

COOING CASANOVA From the bottom of his heart senior Josh Adams sings, "Hardest Thing" by 98°, for his talent show entry. "I was really nervous and hesitant, but I love music and I love to sing so I just got up there and went with it," reflected Josh.

I GOT SKILLS "The talent show thing was pretty cool. I thought it was fun to get up and try new things in front of an audience and actually have everyone's attention and make them all laugh. It was a great feeling," said entertainer, Troy Adams.

J. Cermak

J. Cermak

Jeff Foxworthy? No, that's James Easlick. He's a seventeen year old junior. His role model is his father. In his spare time he enjoys reading and working on model cars. "I really like comedy. It's my favorite form of entertainment. Some of my favorite comedians are Jeff Foxworthy and Chris Rock," stated James. In his act he performed some jokes and impersonations. "James did an excellent impersonation of President Clinton and Cheech and Chong," commented audience member, Tracy Gavenda. James's future plans don't include comedy performances. They are to graduate from high school and go to college and work with website consulting or web page design. If not that, he would like to work with computers or new technology

WORD FOR WORD

J. Cermak