HOW DOES IT LOOK? "It was a lot of fun doing each other's hair for the snowball dance, but then I accidentally burned Lyndsay's ear," commented Gina Mephram.

Lyndsay Goward does Gina's hair in an updo for the big dance. "We started a little tradition of our own by going to each other's house and doing each other's hair before the dances. It all started in the ninth grade when we decided that we should get a group of girls around to hang out before the dance," stated Lyndsay Goward.

Enthusiasm = Involvement

Whoever said that it's quality not quantity was exactly right in explaining the eleventh graders. The junior class this year have a measly twenty-five students, but they all do their share for the class.

"Our class has done a lot for the school by bringing in a lot of the spirit that our whole school has and needs," commented Jill Cermak. "I think that we have done very good in all of the things that we have participated in."

For example, the junior class has placed in a range from first to third place in all of the homecoming floats they have done for the past five years.

Not only are they good at working together, they also show a lot of enthusiasm in everything that they do.

"I am really excited about this year because I finally feel like I am getting older and ready to graduate," stated JR Wright. "Next year will be a lot different because we will be even closer to graduating."

As they get older they start to develop their own individual personalities that set them apart from the rest. For example, the juniors show their wild sides during Homecoming and Twirp week by dressing up for the days in some of the most creative outfits. Stacy Densmore dressed up as Rose from Titanic for favorite movie character day.

"We have a lot of variety and we all like to experiment with different things. Especially now more than ever because we are so close to becoming the leaders at the school," commented Troy Adams.

◆ That Lucas Studt likes to strut his stuff in the middle of the office?

"One day I was wearing pants that buttoned up and in the office the buttons fell off and my pants started to fall down. A couple of older people saw my red underwear."

◆ Why Gina Mephram doesn't wear bibs to school anymore?

"My most embarrassing moment took place in my eighth grade gym class. After gym class I went to the bathroom. As I was taking off my bibs, I flung the straps over my shoulder and as I pulled my pants down, I realized that my straps were in the toilet!"

◆ That Troy Adams likes to dress in drag?

"This year on Freedom Impaired Day I had to wear a skirt. That was so embarrassing but it was even worse because I had to go into Mr. Larsen's room and he teased me about it."
