TOGETHER
We Stand

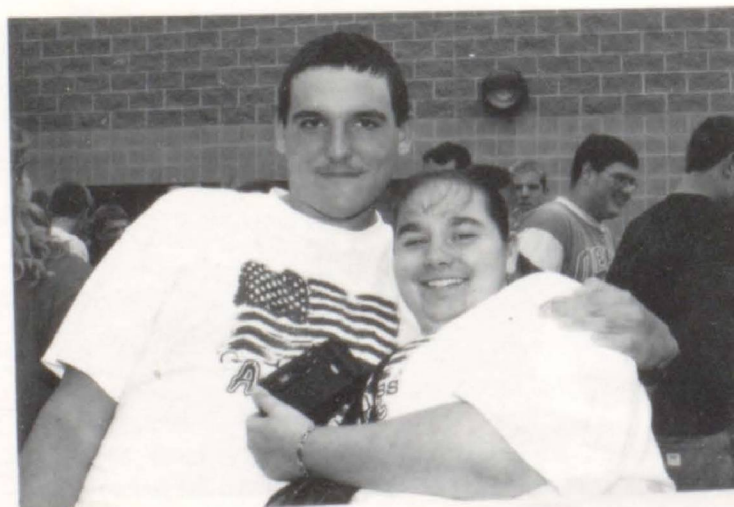

When the breaking news of the September 11th terrorist attacks came on the television, students and staff were brought back to the realization that there is a bigger world out there. "I was shocked when I heard the news. I couldn't believe someone would do this to the United States," Ashleigh Kauffman commented.

Ashley soon saw that they needed to do something to help. During homecoming week students took on Vestaburg in a friendly competition to see who could raise the most money for the Red Cross. At the end of the week,

Ashley had raised $4,895.75, which was about $400 more than Vestaburg. For their funds, students sold balloons, paper stars, and t-shirts. "We did an amazing job donating for how small of a community we are," Ms. Jen Brown stated.
