

More than a portrait

Ashley students are bold and outspoken, there's no denying that. They expose their passions and follow their dreams while making friends along the way. Students show off their true selves and their unique traits. On picture day, students arrive looking a little extra than their normal, every day selves. A different story is told when candid photos capture the fun loving, not afraid to be silly side of Ashley students. Their interests change every year and students use current trends and fads to show off their individual personalities. The moments we've captured reveal that Ashley students are far from afraid to show off their individual spirits in a way that is truly more than words can say.

Middle School Love

The middle schoolers love the camera and never hesitate to show off their love for one another during a photo op.

Time Spent Together is Time Well Spent

The Freshman class shows their school spirit on "Merica Day. The 5th and 6th graders participate in healthy choices field day on a perfect September afternoon.
